ELKS WILL FIGHT HARD
AGAINST REMOVING HOME

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Lynchburg, Va., July 10.—The committee named at a recent meeting of the State Association of Elks here to make a fight against the removal of the Elks' National Home from Bedford county is off for Detroit, where the grand lodge will be in session during the week.

At the last meeting of the grand lodge in Los Angeles a committee was appointed to consider the removal of the home from Bedford to a more central location in the West, and the fight will come up on the report of this special committee.

Speaking of what the committee intended doing, Fred Harper, its chairman, says a circular letter has been sent throughout the Elks' lodges of the country making a protest against the proposed change. Along with this went some literature showing the committee's reasons against any change at the home.

Upon arrival at Detroit the committee will get to work, and the members are hopeful of being able to prevent any action.

The committee is composed of Fred Harper, of Lynchburg; J. S. Draper, of Pulaski, and J. R. Weaver, of Roanoke.

ROCK CREEK SALOON
NOW HOUSE OF WORSHIP

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Bristol. VA. July 10.—Rock Creek saloon, in Unicol county, Tenn., which was a noted rendezvous for drunkards and gambiers when saloons were permitted in Tennessee, to-day witnessed a remarkable transformation when it was dedicated as a Presbyterian house of worship. The sermon was preached by Rev. W. A. Provine, of Nashville. In the congregation were many of the men who had helped to make Rock Creek Valley famous for its orgies in the days of the historic saloons. [Special to The Times-Dispatch I Norfolk, Va., July 10.—Considerable stir has been created among the fans of the city by the announcement that while he was ill in the hospital here with fever, contracted while with the team, Southpaw Bill Otey was released by the management and left the city with his wife, a free agent.

The management is being censured by fandom for turning the man loose when he was flat on his back, although he had been a faithful worker on the team for several seasons. Otey says he will join a ball team that is a real ball team.

The explanation is that Otey lost his nerve, owing to the fear of fever in this section, and said that if he got on his feet he would never play ball in the South again. The management then released him.
